

"WE MUST WAGE PEACE CONTINUOUSLY... WITH SAME ENERGY AS THEY WAGED WAR," SAYS PRESIDENT HOOVER

President Addresses World Alliance for International Friendship Through the Churches, Now in Annual Session in The Washington Auditorium — Makes Only Slight Reference to World Court

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—"We must wage peace continuously—with the same energy as they waged war."

Twelve years to the day and hour after the guns ceased firing on the western front, President Hoover advanced this thought today as a solemn obligation which the nation owes the memory of the dead and the well-being of those who survived the great war.

"A solemn obligation lies upon us," he said, "to press forward in our pursuit of those things for which they died. Our duty is to seek ever new and widening opportunities to insure the world against the horror and irretrievable wastage of war."

The President did not go to Arlington today as has been the usual custom of presidents on anniversaries of the Armistice. Instead, he chose to deliver the annual address to an organization engaged in a world-wide effort to promote peace through religious organizations, the World Alliance for International Friendship through the Churches, now in annual conference in the Washington Auditorium.

Mr. Hoover appraised at some length the process that has been made in promotion of peace since the war twelve years ago. He cited the Kellogg Pact for the outlawry of war, in which 58 nations have now joined; our own arbitration treaties with virtually all the nations of the world; the setting up of such institutions as the League of Nations and the World Court, and the London Naval Treaty.

In connection with the court, Mr. Hoover merely said that "its permanence is assured and from it there is steadily growing a body of precedents, decisions and acceptance of law in the formulation of which we should have a part."

He made no mention of his own immediate plans of re-submitting the Court issue to the Senate, where a controversy awaits it.

While he emphasized that it is America's duty to cooperate with the rest of the world in the preservation of peace, the President also emphasized that the basis of this cooperation must be essentially different from that of other nations.

"The security of our geographic situation," he said, "the traditional freedom from entanglements in the involved diplomacy of Europe, and our disinterestedness enable us to give a different and in many ways a more effective service to peace."

"The nations of Europe, bordered as they are by the age-old danger of which we in the Western Hemisphere have little appreciation, beset as they are by long-inherited fears, believe that they must subscribe to methods which in the last resort will use force to compel nations to abide by their agreements to settle controversies by Pacific means. We, in our great state of safety and independence, should make no criticism of their conclusions which arise from their necessities."

"But we believe that our contribution can best be made in these emergencies, when nations fail to keep their undertakings of pacific settlement of disputes, by our good offices and helpfulness free from any advance commitment or entanglement as to the character of our action."

"The purpose of our Government is to cooperate with others, to use our friendly offices, and, short of any implication of the use of force, to use every friendly effort and all good will to maintain the peace of the world."

"The war that ended on this day 12 years ago taught us one thing, if nothing else, and that is the blessing of peace. When we look back upon its splendid valor and heroism then displayed, when we remember the magnificent energies poured forth by young and old, when we recall the marvelous exercise of the greatest virtues that glorify the human race—usefulness, self sacrifice, cooperation, both by men and women—we are looking not upon qualities which war creates but rather the traits of the human race which war makes seem more vivid by contrast with its own horrors. These same qualities are exercised, in time of peace. Those who died displaying them would have displayed them living, and would have wrought their fruits into the enduring fabric of our peaceful destiny."

"We can only pledge ourselves, in honor of their memory, to the task of making ever more unlikely that our youth hereafter shall be denied its opportunity to devote its idealism and its energies to the constructive arts of peace."

Complete text of the President's address follows:

"Upon this day all thoughts must turn to our heroic dead whose lives were given in defense of the liberties and ideals of our country. Their contribution to these priceless heritages was made without reservation; they gave the full measure of their intelligence and energy and enthusiasm, and life itself, forfeiting their portion of further happiness—all that we and our children might live on more safely, more happily, and more assuredly."

Elks' Rhum Tournament Attracts Large Crowd

Competition was very keen last night at the Elks' rhum tournament when the largest number of members ever attending an affair of this kind tried to carry home one of the many wonderful prizes.

The grill was packed with card players and when the tally cards were totaled it was found that Walter Buchler had won the grand first prize, a handsome banjo clock; Hugh R. McGee, second, a heavy leather suit case; L. M. Worthington, third, a coffee percolator and tray; Charles Dougherty, fourth, a china tea set; Pemberton Munster, fifth, a bronze electric clock; James E. White, sixth, an electric clock; Harry Vanhorn, seventh, a bon-doir lamp.

George Irwin, with a score of 255, received an indoor golf set. H. Firman Young received a waffle iron. William Sigafos, bridge lamp. E. P. Goslin, iced tea set. O. F. Evans, Loidoir lamp. Carl Wenzel, bon-doir lamp. Albert Wunsch, alarm clock. Sam Hardy received a box of candy.

PERKASIE MAY CUT ITS ELECTRIC RATES

Reduced Rates Will Affect
Only Industrial Plants
In the Borough

SNOW PLOW ORDERED

PERKASIE, Nov. 11.—Probabilities are that industries in this borough will have lower electric rates by having combined light and power rates. At present all power and light rates are billed separately.

Appearing before Council in session was a group of men representing the industrial committee of the Perkasio Chamber of Commerce who announced that a large firm is seeking a location in the borough. This firm operates its plant by day and by night. The present light rates in the borough are much higher than the power rates and the firm feels that this will cause the plant to be compelled to pay a heavy electric bill.

It was reported before Council that the plant consumes about 12,000 kilowatts per month, approximately 6,000 for lighting purposes and the remainder for power. It was pointed out last evening that the bill for the 6,000 kilowatts used for lighting would be much higher than the one for the 6,000 kilowatts used for power. Suggestion was made that Council agree to have a combined rate for light and power.

Council took no action in the matter but decided to hold a special meeting next Tuesday evening and in the meanwhile the members will make a survey to find what other municipalities are doing along this line.

The remainder of the evening was devoted to reports of the committees and to the reading of several communications. One of these announced that the Lehigh Valley Traction Company refuses to make alterations to Fifth street, where the tracks cross the highway.

At a previous meeting of Council a communication was sent to the State Highway Department, stating that Council feels that the blinker light at the intersection of Walnut street and Sellersville Road should not be removed. Solicitor Thatcher reported at last evening's meeting that as yet he has received no communication from the State Highway Department.

Council received two bills, one for $149 and another for $58, for two privately owned electric light lines in the territory which was annexed to the borough last summer.

Another communication announced that the Bell Telephone Company agreed to assume joint ownership with the borough of a line of poles in the Horn Tract which was annexed last summer. Before the tract was annexed these poles were used for both electric light and telephone wires and after the annexation the borough purchased the lines and after taking the matter up with the telephone company it was agreed by the latter to assume the joint ownership of these poles.

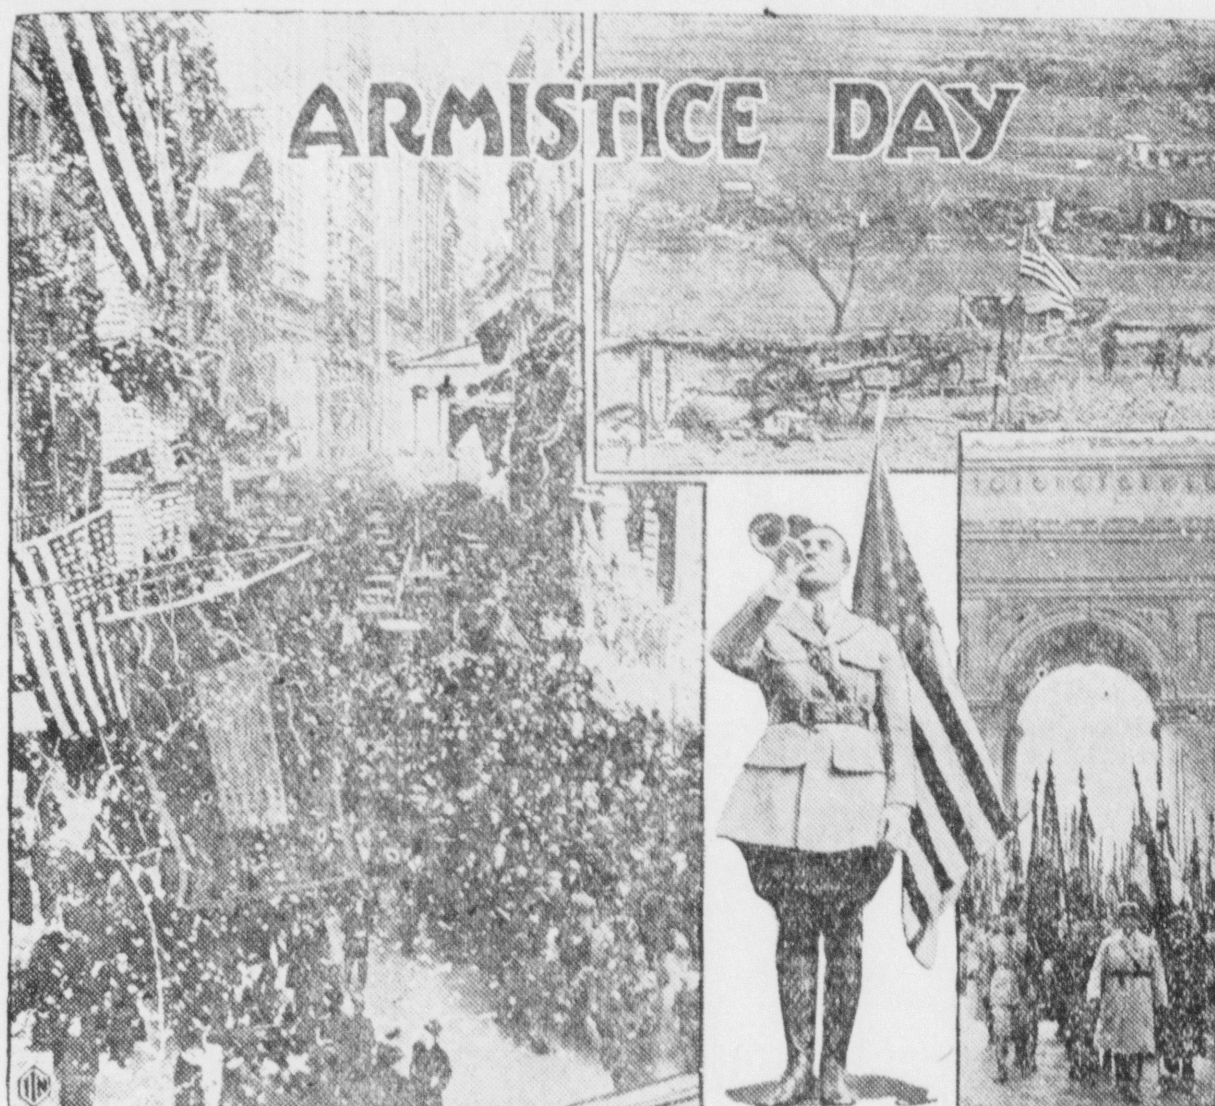

Council decided to purchase a plow for the purpose of removing snow from the streets of the borough. This apparatus which will cost the borough $150 will be attached to the truck which is owned by the borough.

Net earnings at the municipally owned electric light plant, it was reported, amounted to $1726.36 during October. The total receipts were $5642.61.

ARMISTICE DAY MESSAGES

By General John J. Pershing

This is a day of hallowed memory. Twelve years have elapsed since the ending the greatest war of all time.

For America they have been years of peace and progress. It is well to recall on this day that these benefits have come to the American people through valor and heroism on soil that is the richer for the blood they gave it. The dead comrades rest peacefully. For the living there remains the obligation of carrying on, of adhering steadfastly to those ideals of peace and justice which have ever been the inspiration of our people.

May there never be another war, but it is the duty of the living veterans of the great war so to guide the destinies of this nation that should war come it will find the American people prepared, materially and spiritually.

By Patrick J. Hurley
Secretary of War

On this day we express affectionate remembrance of those with whom we served and pause to pay homage to those who suffered and died for the victory we commemorate. We solemnly pledge our support to our nation in peace. More than half the world is in revolution. It should be our purpose to keep our own nation tranquil and to maintain the principles of freedom, justice and democracy which have been worth fighting for and which have made us a great and happy nation.

By General Chas. F. Summerall
Chief of Staff

When the thunder of the guns died down to nothing twelve years ago, our nation rejoiced but was not surprised. We felt a thrilling access of relief that the letting of blood had ceased, that a long travel of suffering was over; but we had never doubted the issue. America's way is a path of victory. No obstacles, material or immaterial, work of men or work on nature, have ever stayed our progress. Armistice Day is a day of rejoicing; it is also a day of dedication. It gives us the opportunity to resolve highly that the patriotism, the devotion and the valor which brought us victory in war shall continue to work for the advancement and happiness of our country.

BRACKEN POST OBSERVES SIGNING OF ARMISTICE

Big Affair to Be Held in Post
Rooms at 8.30
Tonight

EX-ENEMIES ARE GUESTS

The members of Robert W. Bracken Post No. 382 will meet tonight for the first time in their new meeting room in the post home on Radcliffe street to celebrate the signing of the Armistice, and will have as their guests about 15 or 20 ex-German soldiers who fought in the German Army during the World War, and now reside in the Bristol district, to enjoy the occasion with them.

A good program of entertainment has been arranged, including both local and out-of-town talent, a seven-piece orchestra well-known to Bristolians in general has been secured for the affair, and the chairman of the committee states there will not be a dull moment once the program gets under way. Of course, Legionnaires and their invited German guests only will attend.

The meeting will be called to order at 8.30 p. m. in the new meeting room which some of the members now call the "green room." This room has been the result of good, hard work on the part of some of the post members tearing out partitions, chimneys, plastering, wiring, painting, etc., the boys sometimes working far into the night to have the alterations completed for the Armistice Day celebration. A new floor has been laid, old floors have been oiled, the post home has been cleaned from top to bottom and the home looks more inviting than ever before.

Fitting Armistice Day exercises were held in the post rooms this morning at 10.45 o'clock. Members of Bracken Post who fail to attend the celebration tonight will have only themselves to blame and will also miss a real feed of soul kroat and "weenie" prepared by a German-American lady who knows how to cook this appetizing dish.

COUNCIL URGES LAW ENFORCEMENT FOR BICYCLISTS

Warns of Danger to Motorists
As Well as Those Riding
"Wheels"

LAW IMPOSES $10 FINE

Police Officers Today to Be Instructed to Halt
Practice

Complaint was made to Borough Council last night about the riding of bicycles on the streets of Bristol after dark without lights.

The matter was called to the attention of Council and the police department was urged to vigorously enforce the law and thus halt the practice which has grown more or less common.

It was stated in Council that motorists are unable to see bicyclists unless lights are carried and that there is grave danger of accident which undoubtedly would result seriously for the individual on the bicycle.

It appears that there is a State law now which imposes a $10 fine for riding bicycles after sunset without lights. Police today are to be instructed to enforce the law.

Police committee reported officers made 29 arrests during the past month and that the following disposition was made of the cases:

Fined, 5; discharged, 9; held for court, 8; sent to jail, 3; turned over to parents, 2; turned over to other police, 2.

Councilmen present were: Wagner, Williams, Winter, Warner, Morris, Schmidt, Myers, Vandegrift, Duffy, Winslow, Spezzano, Zebley and Fry.

ROLL CALL CHAIRMEN FOR RED CROSS DRIVE

Heads of Various Districts Are Announced for The Campaign

OPENS NEXT TUESDAY

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11.—Launched in the face of the greatest emergency which the Red Cross has confronted since the World War, the Fourteenth Annual Roll Call opened today with 8 million members in America as its national objective. This is the enrollment which national Red Cross leaders hold to be necessary if the organization is to continue its present service to the American public, and face its future responsibility in the field of disaster relief.

Assigned to the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter as a minimum enrollment for 1931 is a goal of 175,000 members. These must be obtained in the territory which includes Philadelphia and the adjoining counties of Bucks, Delaware, Montgomery and Chester and has a population of approximately two and one-half millions.

A mobilization of fifteen thousand volunteers—the greatest army of workers enlisted for army Red Cross membership enrollment since war days—is just being completed in preparation for the roll call in the Chapter. Colonel J. Franklin McFadden, chapter chairman, will again direct the roll call as chairman of the membership committee; Charles W. Crist is manager of the membership department, and the honorary roll call committee is headed by Harry A. Mackey, mayor of Philadelphia. Other members of this committee are General W. W. Atterbury, Dr. Charles E. Beury, His Eminence D. Cardinal Dougherty, Rabbi William H. Fishershrer, the Right Reverend Thomas J. Garland, Reverend Alexander MacColl, D. D., Honorable J. The canvass in the Philadelphia City Wards will be undertaken by nine thousand women volunteers who will work under the direction of Mrs. Henry Brinton Cox, chairman of the City Ward Committee. In the counties where representative men and women are in charge of the local Red Cross canvass there are three thousand volunteers.

In the industrial division of the roll call there are three thousand business, professional and manufacturing houses cooperating. In each of these there is an appointee named by the firm to enroll his fellow-workers. Executives of every business are being asked to help the Red Cross in its present emergency by signing up for

MASKED BANDIT GETS ENVELOPE OF WORTHLESS CHECKS

Sticks Gun Into Ribs of Stacy
B. Brown at Newtown

CROUCHED IN AUTO

Bandit Must Have Been Familiar With Actions of His Victim

NEWTOWN, Nov. 11.—A masked bandit concealed in the rear of the automobile of Stacy B. Brown, prominent undertaker of this section, held up Mr. Brown after sticking a gun into the ribs of the mortician, in the rear of his residence here early last evening.

The bandit accepted an envelope handed him by his victim and taking to his heels fled across the vacant lots. The contents of the envelope will prove to be worthless to the bandit because they were unendorsed checks, a few tax receipts and a list of names. The checks totaled about $700.

Mr. Brown is a director in the Langhorne Building & Loan Association, No. 2, of Langhorne. On the second Monday of every month a number of shareholders in the loan association who live in the vicinity of the Brown residence take their money to him and in turn make payments for them to save them making the trip to Langhorne.

"It must have been someone familiar with this," said Mr. Brown today in speaking of the hold-up.

Last evening Mr. Brown left his car standing outside of his garage which is located in the rear of his residence. At seven o'clock Mr. Brown, his wife and grand daughter went to get into the machine. Mr. Brown being first in line opened the rear door of the sedan.

As the door of the car swung open a man wearing a mask arose from a crouching position in the rear of the car and demanded the money, at the same time forcing a gun into the ribs of Mr. Brown.

Mrs. Brown and the grand-daughter urged Mr. Brown to hand over the envelope which he hid. The bandit then took to his heels.

Both women screamed and the bandit increased his speed as he dashed across the vacant lots in the darkness. State police at Morrisville have been notified and are conducting an investigation.

Mr. Brown has a list of all the checks and other contents of the envelope.

THE TWELFTH ANNIVERSARY

All the world over, hearts are rejoicing this Armistice Day, anniversary of the cessation of hostilities in the World War. That was an event big and important enough to warrant the setting aside by law of one day a year to commemorate it. And it will be more important than now in the years to come when new generations will be forgetting or knowing only by reference to history of the momentous significance of that compact signed in the French woods bringing to an end a conflict that raged for four years and came closer to toppling civilization than any other event in modern history.

The natural impulse on Armistice Day is to enshrine deeper in the affection and admiration of the people the services rendered by the men and women who bore their parts in the struggle. There cannot be too much of that. For the American people or the people protected by the army and navy of any other nation to forget the sacrifices made would be hideous ingratitude.

Generations may get out of patience with the war veterans for this, that or the other thing, but as a group these veterans hold notes against the public which can and will never be paid in full. It is impossible to revive the dead and to restore the injured to full and self-same bodily vigor. No measure wholly wipes from memory the terror and squalor of the trench, the madness of the barrage, the torture of the wounded. These things are given beyond hope of adequate repayment and it is the nation's duty as it is its desire to show in every reasonable way its gratitude.

But that gratitude cannot confine itself to mere words and flag-waving. Like as not the "dough-boys" and the "gobs" believe that their country is appreciative of their services, but what they want is for their countrymen to establish in practice the principles these fighting men went to the trench and the camp to uphold.

Those principles envisage democracy, with all that word implies, the right of the people to rule, the sanctity of the ballot box so that the people can rule, the integrity in public office, the observance of law and the enforcement thereof, the preservation of the home, the contentment of the people.

That is the vision of the Armistice Day of 1928. The roll of drums and blare of horns, the thud of marching feet, the waving of flags, the buzzes of the populace all have a place in the picture but in the background dominating the whole scene is the command from Flanders' Field and other sacred spots to keep the faith to hold aloft the torch, "be yours to lift it high." That is the message, undying and eternal, that gives to Armistice Day this and every other year its distinction.

The poor pedestrian who was run down at the heel was still better off than the one run down by a wheel.

PAUL L. HOEFER

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE:
(The Colorado Africa Expedition headed by Paul L. Hoefler and his companion, Charles, set out from Denver with motion picture and sound equipment to cross equatorial Africa. They arrived at the village of Akasa, on the mud flats of the Niger River and from there 200 miles up the stream in an old-time wood-burning stern wheeler. At Lakota they transferred their baggage to truck and had a difficult journey across unbroken country through the Ivory Forest where they made friends with the pygmies.)

Chapter Three

With no further thought of the elephants, Hoefler and his companion packed their camera and followed the pygmy. He brought them into a clearing in the center of the deep Ituri Forest where hundreds of the little men came from all directions to greet them. Their average height was a little over four feet, and scarcely any of them which makes the feet want to do things."

"What are those women doing over there?" asked Charles.

"Those are the Queens. They are very modest and shy when the king is around," Hoefler explained.

"Oh, do they practice polygamy here in the forest?"

"No," Hoefler replied. "No one except the king is allowed more than one wife. He gets two for safety sake to insure a son and a future king. They also practice trial-marriage. After a try-out if the union don't take, they can start all over again with a new wife."

"How many of them are there?" asked Charles.

"Less than 2,000 of this particular tribe are known to exist," said Hoefler. "The king tells me," he weighed over 75 pounds. They were all well proportioned and comparatively strong.

Taking the salt from the truck and placing it where it could be looted off by acropful, Hoefler had a family send a representative to him.

The pygmies live in clans of 20 or 30 and a few miles apart.

"If income magufa," said the pygmies as they received their allotments.

"What did they say?" asked Charles.

"He told us that as soon as the king arrives they will start the celebration," Hoefler replied. "Each clan has a leader and they in turn are ruled by the big king, who occupies his throne by blood succession just as the crowned heads of Europe. He is honoring us by coming from the depths of his forest capital."

"Why don't we go there and visit him in his native environment?" asked Charles.

"The interior is so dark that it would be impossible to make any pictures there," replied Hoefler.

"Look," exclaimed Charles, "they are preparing to entertain us with the music of the tom-toms."

"They are preparing for the dance," corrected the explorer.

"Every one in pygmy land dances. The chanting, while not particularly harmonious, has a fast rhythm added, "that the proper tribal name is Ith. This is a fact that I have been particularly desirous of learning, as, until now, the real name of the tribe has been unknown."

"Look at those men wrestling!" exclaimed Charles. "Why, that's rice-wrestling of Japan and here we find it in the center of Africa."

Just then a man taller than the others and who appeared like a giant by comparison, although he was only 5 feet 10 inches, came into view.

"That's a member of another tribe," explained Hoefler, translating the words of the king. "He is maintained for one purpose, and that is to mix poison into which the pygmies dip their arrows. According to the king, they blame this giant for whatever they kill and their conscience is clear, because the force of the arrow couldn't cause death but the poison does."

"I'll call these pygmies darn clever," said Charles.

"They are especially fine marksmen, also," Hoefler added. "They can kill huge elephants with these small arrows. If a golfer had their perfection of motion he would be the world's champion."

The friendly pygmy chieftain guided the exploring party through devious parts known only to his people and they continued eastward through the thick jungle of the Belgian Congo.

PERSONAL LIBERTY AND PROHIBITION

To the Editor of the Public Ledger:

Sir—Alcohol always was, from the beginning of history, and always will be, a trouble maker. It has made plenty of trouble for our own country.

One element stands out very prominently in all this trouble: The so-called element of personal liberty. Personal liberty as defined today by many persons has been used in the prohibition question only to cloud the understanding and the imagination. At least some of us must remember how prohibition was defeated in Pennsylvania years ago by this same argument.

Names change. Bootlegger, home-brew, racketeer are only different names for moonshiner, moonshine, speakeasy, hole in the wall, whisky rebellion, etc. The character of the thing named never changes. It is nothing more than alcohol, the trouble maker.

The so-called crime wave has very little or nothing to do with the question of prohibition or its enforcement. It is due to the evil and ignorance of some people. That is why all laws are sometimes broken.

I have had years of experience and know that to live in a community where the sale and use of alcoholic liquor have been eliminated entirely or to a greater or less extent is preferable by far to living in one where the sale and use are unlimited.

S. A. FITZGERALD.

Carlisle, Pa., October 2, 1930.

Reception Given For D. of A. State Officers

A district reception for state officers of State Council, Daughters of America, was held Saturday evening in the P. P. A. Hall, here.

The affair started at eight o'clock with school of instruction, most of the work executed by the Bristol Council. Then a few interesting speeches were made by the following officers:

State councilor, Mrs. Clara Senher, of Elizabeth, Pa.; national trustee, Mrs. Agnes Buchman, of Allentown; state vice-president, Sister Estelle Johnson, of Minersville, Pa.; state judiciary, Mrs. Eleanor Hook, of Philadelphia; national representative, Mrs. Laura Grey, of Philadelphia; state secretary of Junior O. U. A. M., Charles Hall, of Philadelphia; district deputy state councilor, Mrs. Warren Thompson, of Radcliffe street, Bristol.

Following the short talks, a delicious supper was served by the members of the local Council No. 58. The menu included baked Virginia ham, creamed cabbage, potato salad, Swiss cheese, pickles, olives, rolls, butter, coffee, ice cream, cake and after-dinner mints. The lodge room was prettily decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being red, white and blue. Crepe paper streamers were gracefully draped around the room and American flags formed the centerpiece on each table.

The state officers, Past Deputy Mrs. Violet Keers and the in-going deputy, Mrs. Lillian Dyer, were presented with friendship pins. Mrs. Lillian Dyer presented the pins to the state officers and Mrs. Joseph Keers gave the local members their pins.

About one hundred people were present at this meeting, twenty-five folks attending from Councils 12 and 130 in Philadelphia. Everyone present thoroughly enjoyed the meeting, which was a big success through the efforts of the following ladies on the committee: Mrs. Ethel Barr, chairlady, Mrs. Clara Bailey, Miss Ethel Thomas, Mrs. Elizabeth Hinman and Mrs. Carrie Keers.

Mrs. Warren Thompson is district deputy state councilor of District No. 19.

Gray Fox Shot in Woods On J. M. Winder Farm

A gray fox weighing about 12 pounds was shot in the woods on the farm of J. M. Winder, Rogers Road, Bristol Township, yesterday by Elwood and Joseph Stackhouse.

The two Stackhouse boys went hunting and remarked upon leaving Bristol that they were going to get a fox.

The animal is now on exhibition in the window of Barney's hardware store, Mill street.

Brother and Sister Are Joint Hosts to Friends

Marie and John, Jr., the six and five year old children of Mr. and Mrs. John Lynch, of 211 Otter street, were hosts on Saturday afternoon from one-thirty to four-thirty o'clock, in celebration of their joint birthday anniversaries.

The table was festively dressed with Halloween appointments. The children indulged in many games, including a peanut and a taffy hunt.

Favors were given to Myrtle Collier for excelling in solo dancing, to William Delia, for being the best solo singer, and to Michael Delia for performing the most comic stunt.

The guests included: Helen Brushia, Myrtle Collier, Jane West, Sara Ellis and Jane and Betty Lynch.

William, Francis and Michael Delia, Edward Kline, Edward Terneson and Leonard Simons, Jr.

Both Marie and John received a number of lovely gifts as mementos of the occasion.

Girl, 6, Attacked By Police Dog and Injured

HULMEVILLE, Nov. 11.—A small Hulmeville girl is suffering from numerous gashes upon her face as the result of being either bitten or clawed by a police dog at a neighbor's home yesterday.

The tot is Eleanor Becker, six-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Becker, of McKinley avenue.

Eleanor went to the home of William Berwick, next door to her parents' home, yesterday, with the intention of playing with the Berwick's small daughter. She had just reached the neighbor's front door when a police dog owned by the Berwicks attacked her. Screaming she ran to her home, her face covered with blood.

A physician was summoned, and the wounds dressed. The deep cuts are upon her forehead, and across her cheeks and nose. In one spot a small portion of the nose was loosened from the face. It was thought inadvisable by the doctor to take stitches in the cuts immediately, owing to the nature of the wounds.

New Type of Airport Tender Demonstrated at Plant Here

A splendid new type of airport tender was demonstrated at the plant of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation, here, yesterday, by the Gulf Refining Company.

The well-equipped truck which has just been put into commission by the Gulf service, is a most unique affair. Two oil tanks and a water tank are insulated with two inches of magnesium and heated by two and a half kilowatt immersion heaters, thermostatically controlled. This permits the delivery of lubricating oil and water at an approximate temperature of 150 degrees Fahrenheit, enabling ships to take the oil immediately without a warming up process. Five hundred gallons of gasoline, 100 gallons of oil and 35 gallons of water may be made at one delivery.

The equipment consists of accurate meters and wet hose connections for dispensing same. There are no pumps of any kind on the truck. Oil and gasoline are dispensed by the use of air and there is a complete system of water traps and strainers to preclude any possibility whatever of water getting into the gasoline tank of the plane.

The gasoline and lube oil tanks are equipped with a float regulating valve which cuts off the air pressure to the tank when the level of the liquid gets low, automatically preventing any inaccuracy in the meter equipment due to air passing through it.

The airport tender is also equipped with lighting facilities for night service and an air tank for inflating the tires.

"We Must Wage Peace Continuously . . ."—Hoover

other nations. It was bound to 26 nations by conciliation treaties, both bilateral and multilateral. Since that time we have completed treaties with 15 more countries, and in addition we have signed further arbitration and conciliation treaties with 45 nations, of which 26 have been ratified and the others are either before the Senate or in course of presentation to it.

"By these treaties of arbitration we pledge ourselves to the acceptance of the judgment of a disinterested third party in all controversies of a justiciable character. By treaties of conciliation we pledge ourselves to submit all other types of controversy to negotiations or the mediation of commissions which embrace representatives of disinterested nations.

"It is our purpose to develop in every way the use of arbitration and conciliation agreements in our relations with foreign nations.

"Since our experience in the World War no one will deny the dangers which foreign wars bring to our shores or the interest we must have in the peace of the world at large. But I do not hold that our obligation in these matters lies wholly on the basis of self-interest. It is upon its moral and spiritual strength that the advancement of the world must rest.

"Our basis of cooperation to preserve peace among nations must be different from that of the other great nations of the world. The security of our geographic situation, our traditional freedom from entanglements in the involved diplomacy of Europe, and our disinterestedness enable us to give a different and in many ways a more effective service to peace.

The nations of Europe, bordered as they are by age-old dangers of which we in the Western Hemisphere have little appreciation, beset as they are by long-inherited fears, believe that they must subscribe to methods which in the last resort will use force to compel nations to abide by their agreements to settle controversies by pacific means. We, in our great state of safety and independence, should make no criticism of their conclusions which arise from their necessities.

"But we believe that our contribution can best be made in these emergencies, when nations fail to keep their undertakings of pacific settlement of disputes, by our good offices and helpfulness free from any advance commitment or entanglement as to the character of our action.

"The purpose of our Government is to cooperate with others, to use our friendly offices, and, short of any implication of the use of force, to use every friendly effort and all good will to maintain the peace of the world.

"The war that ended on this day 12 years ago taught us one thing, if nothing else, and that is the blessing of peace. When we look back upon its splendid valor and heroism then displayed, when we remember the magnificent energies poured forth by young and old, when we recall the marvelous exercise of the greatest virtues that glorify the human race—unselfishness, self-sacrifice, cooperation, both by men and women—we are looking not upon qualities which war creates but rather upon the traits of the human race which war makes seem more vivid by contrast with its own horrors. These same qualities are exercised, but are unsung and unheralded, in times of peace. Those who died displaying them would have wrought their fruits into the enduring fabric of our peaceful destiny. We can only pledge ourselves, in honor of their memory, to the task of making ever more unlikely that our youth hereafter shall be denied its opportunity to devote its idealism and its energies to the constructive arts of peace.

"Other nations of the world have likewise been engaged over years in the building up of the machinery for pacific settlement of controversies. There are hundreds of arbitration and conciliation treaties existing directly between them. Indeed the covenant of the League of Nations provides for arbitration and conciliation amongst 54 nations of the world.

"It is my belief that the world will have become firmly interlocked with such agreements within a very few years, and that it will become an accepted principle of international law that disputes between nations which it has not been possible to determine through the ordinary channels of diplomacy shall in future be submitted to arbitration, or to international conciliation commissions.

"In the development of methods of pacific settlement, a great hope lies in ever extending the body and principles of international law on which such settlements will be based. The World Court is now a strongly established institution amongst 45 nations as a continuing body, performing and facilitating justiciable determinations which can only be accomplished sporadically under special treaties of arbitration. Its permanence is assured and from it there is steadily growing a body precedent, decisions, and acceptance of law in the formulation of which we should have a part, not alone in our own interest but in advancement of peace.

"A year ago I made a suggestion of a practical contribution in settlement of an age-old controversy of freedom of the seas. I proposed that food supplies should be made immune from interference in time of war, and that the security of such supplies should be guaranteed by neutral transport and management. I proposed it not alone upon humane grounds but that the haunting fears of nations who must live from over the sea might be relaxed and the sacrifices which they make for naval strength might be lessened. Our food supplies are assured, and it is therefore from us a disinterested proposal. It would make for prevention as well as limitation of war.

"We, as a Nation whose independence, liberties, and securities were born of war, can not contend that there never is or never will be righteous cause for war in the world. Nor can we assume that righteousness has so advanced in the world that we may yet have complete confidence in the full growth of pacific means or rest solely upon the processes of peace for defense.

"With the progress the world has made in the installation of the methodical processes for the settlement of controversies, the larger problem emerges as to fidelity to agreement to use these methods. The thought and anxiety of the world is rightly directed to the question as to what the nations of the world will do in case of a failure to use them. It is useless for us to say that we have no interest in such events."

Roll Call Chairmen For Red Cross Drive

one of the higher forms of membership for $5, $10 or $25.

There are ninety groups represented in the Business Division Committee of the Annual Roll Call of which John Fieser is chairman.

Red Cross Sunday, observed in some twelve hundred churches throughout the Chapter on November 9th, placed before people of every denomination the Red Cross appeal for the present Roll Call. Clergymen and the heads of various religious organizations, emphasized in their talks the non-sectarian character of Red Cross service and the universality of its appeal.

Numerous organizations which in other years have taken no official part in the Roll call are active now. Members of the women's clubs in Philadelphia and Delaware Counties are volunteering to help this year by taking charge of the Red Cross booths which will be set up in railway stations, hotels, and at various strategic points on crowded thoroughfares.

The co-operation of the Delaware County clubs, obtained through Mrs. Elmer Melick, head of the Delaware County Federation of Women's Clubs, will bring to the aid of the Red Cross the membership of the Brookline Woman's Club, both Junior and Senior sections; the Junior section of the Media Woman's Club; the Century Club of Lansdowne; the Oakmont and South Ardmore Woman's Club; and the Sharon Hill Woman's Club.

Officials of the Knights of Columbus for the first time in the history of the organization, are seeking to swing their twelve thousand members solidly into the Red Cross membership ranks for a 100 per cent enrollment. This action of the Knights is made possible through the co-operation of the Patriotic Committees of the Archbishop Ryan and the Cardinal Dougherty Fourth Degree Assemblies.

Since the war, the work of the National Red Cross has been financed from two sources, namely: current revenues, and reserves which were set aside at the close of the war to provide for post-war commitments. The revenues are made up of the national share of membership dues which is fifty cents for each member enrolled during the annual Roll Call; restricted contributions for special purposes such as disaster relief, and interest on the Endowment Fund and other invested funds. Chapter work is financed from the Chapter's share of membership dues, and from contributions for the local programs.

Judge John Barton Payne, national chairman of the Red Cross, states that the reserves are now exhausted except for a balance in the reserve work for ex-service men. And since it is apparent that this reserve is not sufficient to discharge the obligations assumed on behalf of war veterans and their families, this work must eventually become a part of the general budget.

"With the depletion of the reserves, and its continually developing responsibilities, particularly in disaster relief, an increase in membership is necessary if the Red Cross is to continue to meet the enlarged demands which, under its Congressional Charter, now confront it," Judge Payne said.

The application of swift and effective relief measures to stricken people in the first hours following calamity, has seemingly invested the Red Cross with the infallibility of a Federal agency in the eyes of the Nation. But the people of the United States have forgotten that the reserve of the National Red Cross was the thing which made possible the instant administration of relief. This reserve has been expended during the last eight years at the rate of $870,000 a year in excess of Red Cross income. The deficit has been paid from the reserve.

Acting as chairmen in the various branches of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter for the Fourteenth Annual Red Cross Roll Call are the following:

Aldan, Mrs. M. Z. Hill; Bala-Cynwyd, Mrs. Thomas M. Mills; Bristol, Mrs. G. L. Williams; Brookline, Mrs. Lillie Lambert; Chester, Dr. J. S. Eynon; Chester Valley, Mrs. C. L. # A PROBLEM IN SIMPLE ARITHMETIC

"MAKING" a fire insurance rate, and "computing" it, are two very different things. The property owner helps to make it by maintaining certain conditions, good or bad, which in part determine what the rate must be.

The trained experts of the inspection bureau for your locality, after surveying those conditions, compute the rate after giving credit for good points in the risk and making charges for the ones that constitute fire hazards.

Structure, occupancy, character of private and public fire protection, exposure from other property, general loss experience: These are some of the things the inspector takes into account when measuring a risk for the purpose of computing the rate.

Surveys and Counsel Available
Instead of attempting to handle fire prevention problems your own way, seek the counsel of the inspection and rating bureau for your locality. Its officials and employes will be glad to help you without charge.

The agent who writes your insurance, or your insurance broker, can tell you just how to reach the inspection organization serving your community.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

companies solicit your interest in this matter. These companies generally prefer risks eligible to a low rate rather than those which must carry higher rates. The stock companies support the inspection and rating organizations and, through the National Board of Fire Underwriters, publish information upon which risk measurements are based.

In Pennsylvania fire insurance rates are computed by the Underwriters' Association of the Middle Department, Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association (Philadelphia only), Philadelphia Suburban Underwriters' Association, and the Fire Underwriters of Allegheny County (Pittsburgh and vicinity) with their extensive staffs of trained engineers.
